WHAT SHE PLAYED.

The Last Music That Theodore Thomas Heard on Earth.

During the last illness of Theodore Thomas, although he was not at any time unconscious or delirious, he hardly noticed the members of his family as they came and went at the bedside. But one morning he seemed to be better.

He made little jokes with the doctors and his sons and talked about his White mountain home. At 12 o'clock he seemed tired. The editor of his autobiography says that he sunk into a dreamy state, and then roused himself to say to his wife in a lingering, ecstatic voice:

"I have had a beautiful vision—a beautiful vision!"

Then he drifted off into silence.

His wife thought he was tired and went downstairs to luncheon, but chiefly with the purpose of leaving him to rest. He had given her a chime of bells, to be used in summoning the family to meals, and because of his illness they had never rung in the house. Now, because he seemed so much better, she played on them a little single call that came into her head.

"Do you know what you have played?" asked one of the family. "Taps—the call that is sounded over the graves of dead soldiers."

She rushed back to the bells and played the call engraved on a metal plate above them. Afterward she found that this was reveille, the soldier's signal to rise.

So it had chanced that the last music Theodore Thomas heard on earth had been symbolic of death and the resurrection.—Youth's Companion.

"That horrid Uxorily has married again?"

"Yes, and he's awfully fond of his latest wife. He says she's his glorious fourth."—Chicago Tribune.

The haughty are always the victims of their own rash conclusions.—

VERO.

Our telephones work finer than a hundred dollar Elgin watch.

Miss Mattie Tuten, of Artesia, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Roach.

Persimmons are getting scarce now. The crop was very short this year, but very fine.

Mrs. Roach returned home Thursday from Artesia, where he has been on a visit to her parents for several days.

I. D. Jandreau has his large house at the river nearly completed. The recent bad weather has retarded the work on it very much.

N. King, of Cocoa and Artesia, with his family arrived in town Saturday. Mr. King will be employed on the Penny groves and vegetable gardens.

A. K. Wilson of THE TRIBUNE was up from Fort Pierce Saturday. While here he purchased for THE TRIBUNE the entire printing outfit and business of N. O. Penny, whose other business interests have compelled him to retire.

Jerden Grice is moving up to the Narrows on the east side, where he will make a crop of vegetables this winter. Mr. Grice is a large and very successful grower. He also has large orange and grapefruit interests here at Vero.

THE DAINTY WASP.

Apparatus With Which He Makes His Complicated Toilet.

"Wasps are exceedingly dainty in their habits," says a writer in the Pilgrim, "and, in order that they may gratify their instinct for neatness to the utmost, nature has provided them with a set of marvelously delicate combs and brushes. If we look closely at the wasp's legs we will find that each bears on its outermost long joint two small, movable spines, known as the apical spurs, and if we examine these with a magnifying glass each is seen to be provided with a row of fine teeth, so that the apparatus answers for a coarse and fine toothed comb.

"The tidying up process consists of various perfectly definite steps, usually taking place in a particular sequence. First, it passes both front legs over the face from above downward, and after repeating this movement several times draws them through the jaws. This is to remove any foreign substance which may have collected on them. The legs are then passed backward from the forehead, much as we should smooth back our hair. The wings are then stroked again and again from the base to the tip, although the most careful observer would fail to detect anything upon them. The abdomen is next carefully stroked from base to tip until every hair points in the right direction and a gloss as fine as satin is attained. Last of all, each of the six legs, in turn, is laboriously drawn between two of its fellows, so the wasp is once more ready to face its world."

A Story of Washington.

George Washington's head gardener was from some European kingdom, where he had worked in the royal grounds. But coming to America he left his wife behind. Homesickness for his "gude" woman's face soon began to prey on him, and Washington noticed the anxious eye and drooping spirits of his servant. Finally the man went down to the river and declared his intention of shipping to the old country, when who should come up and lean over the side of a newly arrived vessel but his wife. The kind hearted general had secretly sent for the woman, and she fortunately surprised her loving husband in one of his fits of despondency.

A Queer Thing About July.

How we came to pronounce July as we do now with the accent on the second syllable is one of the unsolved mysteries of speech. Named, of course, after Julius Caesar, it should really be pronounced to rhyme with "duly," and so our forefathers actually did pronounce it. Spenser, for instance, has the line, "Then came hot July boyling like to fire," and even so late as Johnson's time the accent was still on the "Ju." It is one of many words which would startle those ancestors of ours, spoken as we speak them now.—London Chronicle.

Men and Women.

He—I think every woman is entitled to be considered man's equal. She—Well, if she is willing to bring herself down to his level I don't see why she shouldn't be allowed to pose as his equal.—Illustrated Bits.

A Repulse.

He—I would lay the world at your feet. She (laughingly)—My dear sir, it is there already. Don't assume credit for the law of gravitation.

To the honest mind the best perquisites of a place are the advantages it gives for doing good.—Addison.
